

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF NEVADA

Interior Electric Incorporated Nevada,

Case No.: 2:18-cv-01118-JAD-VCF

Plaintiff

v.

Order Denying Defendants' Motion to Dismiss

T.W.C. Construction, Inc., et al.,

[ECF No. 191]

Defendants

Interior Electric Incorporated Nevada, an electrical subcontractor, alleges that defendant T.W.C. Construction, Inc., a general contractor, encouraged two of its employees to form a competing electrical-subcontractor business by misappropriating Interior Electric's trade secrets and copyrighted material. In the two years since filing this lawsuit, Interior Electric has twice remedied pleading defects identified by the parties and this court, amending its now 70-page complaint to assert 21 causes of action against 10 defendants.¹ T.W.C., Matthew Ryba, and Mark Wilmer now move to dismiss six of those causes of action, arguing that Interior Electric has failed to allege sufficient facts to support them.² Interior Electric disagrees, pointing to its extensive complaint and arguing that Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(g)(2) bars defendants' successive Rule 12(b)(6) motion.³ I hold that defendants' motion is improper with respect to Interior Electric's unjust-enrichment, aiding-and-abetting, quantum-meruit, and promissory-estoppel claims, as well as its civil-conspiracy claims against T.W.C, and I decline to consider their objections. I also hold that Interior Electric has alleged sufficient facts, at the pleading stage, demonstrating that Ryba and Wilmer intentionally interfered with its prospective economic advantage and committed civil conspiracy. So I deny defendants' motion to dismiss.

¹ See ECF No. 188 (second amended complaint).

² ECF No. 191 (motion to dismiss).

³ ECF No. 206 (response).

Factual Allegations⁴

Interior Electric is an electrical contractor operating in Nevada and California that designs and builds electrical solutions, based on its own proprietary template for drafting electrical-engineering plans.⁵ For more than two decades, T.W.C. hired Interior Electric as an electrical subcontractor on numerous projects.⁶ But in 2017, T.W.C., through its president Wilmer and C.E.O. Ryba, solicited two of Interior Electric's employees to build a competing electrical-subcontractor business named BAMB, which would use Interior Electric's proprietary templates to complete T.W.C.'s construction projects.⁷ Wilmer and Ryba personally and secretly bankrolled the new business⁸ and, when Interior Electric discovered that its employees were moonlighting, it fired them.⁹ After March 2017, T.W.C. directed its current and prospective business opportunities to BAMB and away from Interior Electric, even though Interior Electric expected that it would be hired to build out the electrical designs it had already created for T.W.C.'s projects.¹⁰

⁴ This is merely a summary of facts alleged in the complaint and should not be construed as findings of fact.

⁵ ECF No. 188 at ¶¶ 23, 33, 136–40.

⁶ Id. at ¶¶ 27, 34.

⁷ Id. at ¶¶ 10, 11, 38, 142, 144.

⁸ Id. at ¶¶ 43–45, 49–53.

⁹ Id. at ¶ 56.

¹⁰ Id. at ¶¶ 144, 157, 169, 184.

1 Interior Electric’s 70-page complaint contains extensive allegations involving multiple,
 2 independent defendants and claims irrelevant to deciding the present motion.¹¹ In relevant part,
 3 it brings multiple claims against T.W.C., Ryba, and Wilmer, including claims for unjust
 4 enrichment, civil conspiracy, and aiding and abetting.¹² It also sues T.W.C. based on 5 promissory-estoppel and quantum-meruit–implied-in-fact-contract theories, and Ryba and 6 Wilmer for intentionally interfering with its prospective economic advantage.¹³ Defendants
 7 move to dismiss those claims, arguing that each is insufficiently pled.¹⁴

8 Discussion

9 A. Standard of review

10 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8 requires every complaint to contain “[a] short and plain 11 statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.”¹⁵ While Rule 8 does not 12 require detailed factual allegations, the properly pled claim must contain enough facts to “state a 13 claim to relief that is plausible on its face.”¹⁶ This “demands more than an unadorned, the-14 defendant-unlawfully-harmed-me accusation;” the facts alleged must raise the claim “above the 15 speculative level.”¹⁷ In other words, a complaint must make direct or inferential allegations
 16 about “all the material elements necessary to sustain recovery under some viable legal theory.”¹⁸

17
 18 ¹¹ See generally id.

19 ¹² Id. at ¶¶ 410–536.

20 ¹³ Id.

21 ¹⁴ ECF No. 191.

22 ¹⁵ Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(a)(2); Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007); Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678–79 (2009).

23 ¹⁶ Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570.

¹⁷ Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678.

¹⁸ Twombly, 550 U.S. at 562 (quoting Car Carriers, Inc. v. Ford Motor Co., 745 F.2d 1101, 1106 (7th Cir. 1989)) (emphasis in original).

District courts employ a two-step approach when evaluating a complaint's sufficiency on a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss. The court must first accept as true all well-pled factual allegations in the complaint, recognizing that legal conclusions are not entitled to the assumption of truth.¹⁹ Mere recitals of a claim's elements, supported by only conclusory statements, are insufficient.²⁰ The court must then consider whether the well-pled factual allegations state a plausible claim for relief.²¹ A claim is facially plausible when the complaint alleges facts that allow the court to draw a reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the alleged misconduct.²² A complaint that does not permit the court to infer more than the mere possibility of misconduct has "alleged—but not shown—that the pleader is entitled to relief," and it must be dismissed.²³

B. Rule 12(g)(2)'s procedural bar

I have partially granted two motions to dismiss submitted by T.W.C. and Ryba,²⁴ as well as one submitted by Wilmer.²⁵ Defendants now move again under Rule 12(b)(6),²⁶ seeking to dismiss six causes of action that have been alleged against Ryba, Wilmer, and T.W.C. with varying consistency since the filing of the June 2018 complaint.²⁷ Interior Electric contends that Rule 12(g)(2) bars this successive motion to dismiss because these objections were available to ¹⁹ Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678–79.

²⁰ Id.

²¹ Id. at 679.

²² Id.

²³ Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570.

²⁴ See ECF Nos. 81, 179.

²⁵ See ECF No. 179.

²⁶ ECF No. 191.

²⁷ See generally ECF Nos. 1, 130, 188.

1 Ryba, Wilmer, and T.W.C. in their earlier motions.²⁸ Defendants respond that any amendment
 2 to Interior Electric's complaint wipes the slate clean, they have not brought this successive Rule
 3 12(b)(6) motion for purposes of delay, and a ruling on their motion promotes judicial 4 efficiency.²⁹

5 Rule 12(g)(2) provides that, "[e]xcept as provided in Rule 12(h)(2) or (3), a party that 6 makes a motion under this rule must not make another motion under this rule raising a defense or 7 objection that was available to the party but omitted from its earlier motion."³⁰ And Rule
 8 12(h)(2) states that a "failure to state a claim defense" may be raised "in any pleading allowed or 9 ordered under Rule 7(a); by a motion under Rule 12(c); or at trial."³¹ As the Ninth Circuit has 10 explained, "Rule 12(g)(2) provides that a defendant who fails to assert a failure-to-state-a-claim
 11 defense in a pre-answer Rule 12 motion cannot assert that defense in a later pre-answer motion
 12 under Rule 12(b)(6)," but must instead raise that defense through the avenues permitted by Rule
 13 12(h)(2).³² The procedural history of this case indicates that Rule 12(g)(2) bars the defendants'
 14 Rule 12(b)(6) motion with respect to some, but not all, of Interior Electric's claims.

15 1. Rule 12(g)(2) bars objections to Interior Electric's unjust-enrichment, 16 aiding-and-abetting, quantum-meruit, and promissory-estoppel claims, and its civil-conspiracy claims against T.W.C.

17 In its initial complaint, Interior Electric sued T.W.C. for all five of these claims and sued
 18 Ryba for three of them (unjust enrichment, civil conspiracy, and aiding and abetting).³³ In its

19 _____
 20 ²⁸ ECF No. 206 at 7–9.

21 ²⁹ ECF No. 224 at 3–5.

22 ³⁰ Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(g)(2).

23 ³¹ Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(h)(2)(A)–(C).

³² In re Apple iPhone Antitrust Litig., 846 F.3d 313, 318 (9th Cir. 2017), aff'd sub nom. Apple Inc. v. Pepper, 138 S. Ct. 2647 (2018).

³³ See generally ECF Nos. 1, 130, 188.

1 first amended complaint, Interior Electric added Wilmer as an individual defendant, suing him,
 2 in relevant part, for unjust enrichment, civil conspiracy, and aiding and abetting.³⁴ Yet despite
 3 being on notice of these claims, defendants did not move to dismiss any of them on the grounds
 4 that they were insufficiently pled in either their first or second motions to dismiss.³⁵ In their first
 5 motion to dismiss, T.W.C. and Ryba moved to dismiss claims for breach of contract, breach of 6 the implied covenant, the statutory claims, interference with economic advantage (against TWC
 7 alone), and concert of action.³⁶ I granted that motion in part.³⁷ But in their second motion to 8 dismiss, which now included Wilmer and which I also granted in part,³⁸ defendants moved to 9 dismiss the intentional-interference claim on multiple grounds, the unjust-enrichment claim
 10 because Ryba and Wilmer were immunized as “corporate representatives” of T.W.C., and the 11 civil-conspiracy claim against Ryba and Wilmer.³⁹ Neither motion, however, sought to dismiss 12 the aiding-and-abetting, quantum-meruit, promissory-estoppel, unjust-enrichment, or civil-13 conspiracy-against-T.W.C. claims because they were insufficiently pled. A strict application of 14 Rule 12(g)(2) thus bars a successive motion based on those objections.

15 T.W.C., Ryba, and Wilmer assert that the filing of an amended complaint renders 16 previous complaints “non-existent”⁴⁰ and that the Ninth Circuit’s decision in In re Apple iPhone

17 ³⁴ See generally ECF Nos. 130, 188.

18 ³⁵ See ECF Nos. 55, 137.

19 ³⁶ ECF No. 55.

20 ³⁷ ECF No. 81.

21 ³⁸ See ECF Nos. 137, 179 at 12–13.

22 ³⁹ See generally ECF No. 137.

23 ⁴⁰ ECF No. 224 at 4. While it is true that “an ‘amended complaint supersedes the original,’” Ramirez v. Cnty. of San Bernardino, 806 F.3d 1002, 1008 (9th Cir. 2015) (quoting Forsyth v. Humana, Inc., 114 F.3d 1467, 1474 (9th Cir. 1997)), it does not follow that all defenses and objections restart with the filing of each amended complaint. Such a claim runs counter to the federal rules and established law, which provide that certain defenses are waived if not asserted

1 Antitrust Litigation permits my consideration of their successive Rule 12(b)(6) motion.⁴¹ In it,
 2 the Ninth Circuit reasoned that strict application of Rule 12(g)(2) “can produce unnecessary and
 3 costly delays” and that appellate courts “should generally be forgiving of a district court’s ruling
 4 on the merits of a late-filed Rule 12(b)(6) motion.”⁴² While affirming that Rule 12(g)(2) facially
 5 bars successive Rule 12(b)(6) motions, the Ninth Circuit held that district courts have some 6 discretion to consider such a motion if doing so does not prejudice the plaintiff and expedites
 7 resolution of the case.⁴³

8 But the Ninth Circuit neither eliminated Rule 12(g)(2) nor blessed pre-answer motion 9 practice that effects death by a thousand cuts. In re Apple merely deemed it harmless error to 10 hear successive Rule 12(b)(6) motions if certain factors, like a just and speedy resolution of the 11 case, warrant it.⁴⁴ Those conditions are not satisfied here. First, the prejudice to Interior Electric 12 is manifest. Interior Electric filed this complaint two years ago and has devoted considerable 13 time and energy to twice amending it. Considering defendants’ Rule 12(b)(6) motion now might 14
 15

16 in the first responsive pleading or motion. See, e.g., Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(2); Smith v. Idaho, 392
 17 F.3d 350, 355 (9th Cir. 2004) (“[I]t is well-recognized that personal jurisdiction—unlike subject-18 matter jurisdiction—may be waived.”); Benny v. Pipes, 799 F.2d 489, 392 (9th Cir. 1986) (“A general appearance or responsive pleading by a defendant that fails to dispute personal jurisdiction will waive any defect in service or personal jurisdiction.”).

19 ⁴¹ ECF No. 224 at 4 (citing In re Apple iPhone, 846 F.3d at 319).

20 ⁴² In re Apple iPhone, 846 F.3d at 319.

21 ⁴³ Id. at 319–20 (determining that the district court’s consideration of a late-filed Rule 12(b)(6) motion was harmless because the defendant’s series of motions were not “filed for any 22 strategically abusive purpose,” declining to consider the motions “would have substantially delayed resolution,” and “the district court’s decision on the merits of Apple’s Rule 12(b)(6) motion materially expedited the district court’s disposition of the case, which was a benefit to 23 both parties”).

⁴⁴ Id.

1 require further amendment that could, and should, have occurred earlier.⁴⁵ Second, T.W.C.,
 2 Ryba, and Wilmer have provided no reason why they did not raise these objections earlier,
 3 despite being well aware of the claims against them.⁴⁶ Their successive Rule 12(b)(6) motion
 4 has thus resulted in a “scattershot approach to attacking” Interior Electric’s causes of action,
 5 “imped[ing] speedy resolution of the case.”⁴⁷ Numerous district courts have declined to consider
 6 successive Rule 12(b)(6) motions under similar circumstances.⁴⁸ I join their numbers and hold
 7 that Rule 12(g)(2) now bars the defendants’ motion to dismiss Interior Electric’s unjust-
 8 enrichment, aiding-and-abetting, quantum-meruit, promissory-estoppel, and civil-conspiracy-
 9 against-T.W.C. claims.

12 ⁴⁵ Federal Rule 12(g)(2) “contemplates the presentation of an omnibus pre-answer motion in 13 which the defendant advances every available Rule 12 defense and objection he may have that is 14 assertable by motion.” 5A Charles Alan Wright & Arthur R. Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure: Civil 2d § 1384 at 726 (1990).

15 ⁴⁶ Instead, defendants merely assert that they did not bring this motion “for the sole purpose of 16 delay,” which they claim is the “only” reason to disregard a successive petition under Rule 17 12(g)(2). ECF No. 224 at 5. But the Ninth Circuit does not cabin Rule 12(g)(2)’s reach to successive petitions brought exclusively to delay the proceedings. See In re Apple iPhone, 846 F.3d at 319. And the defendants still fail to explain why they did not present these objections sooner, when Interior Electric’s complaint was arguably even less factually developed.

18 ⁴⁷ Harrell v. City of Gilroy, No. 17-CV-05204, 2019 WL 452039, at *8 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 5, 2019).

19 ⁴⁸ See id.; see also Humana Inc. v. Mallinckrodt ARD LLC, No. CV 19-6926, 2020 WL 5640553, 20 at *12 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 14, 2020) (“The Court declines to dismiss those claims . . . for the 21 additional reason that Defendant did not raise this contention in its prior motion and therefore is 22 prohibited from doing so here under Rule 12(g)(2).”); Mario V. v. Armenta, No. 18-cv-00041, 23 2019 WL 8137140, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 17, 2019) (“The issues now raised by Defendants could have, and under the Federal Rules should have, been litigated then. Defendants have not offered any explanation as to why they failed to raise their current failure-to-state-a-claim defenses in their first motions to dismiss, or why Plaintiffs should be prejudiced by potential delay in litigating those defenses at this late date.”); In re Packaged Seafood Prods. Antitrust Litig., 277 F. Supp. 3d 1167, 1174 (S.D. Cal. Sept. 26, 2017) (“[T]o refuse to enforce Rule 12(g)(2)’s clear command . . . would set a dangerous precedent regarding the ability to continually hamstring a plaintiff with wave after wave of motions to dismiss.”).

1 2. Rule 12(g)(2) does not bar Ryba and Wilmer’s objections to Interior
 2 Electric’s intentional-interference-with-prospective-economic-advantage and
 3 civil-conspiracy claims.

4 Ryba and Wilmer have not waived their objections to Interior Electric’s claims for 5 intentional interference with prospective economic advantage and conspiracy, however. They 6 sought dismissal for both causes of action before: with respect to the intentional-interference
 7 claim, Ryba and Wilmer argued that they did not act outside the scope of T.W.C.’s interest or 8 with malice toward Interior Electric; and, with respect to the conspiracy claim, they claimed
 9 Interior Electric failed to allege the existence of an agreement to commit a viable tort.⁴⁹ I agreed
 10 and granted their motion, dismissing Interior Electric’s amended complaint without prejudice.⁵⁰
 11 Defendants are thus again permitted to seek dismissal of those claims against Ryba and Wilmer, 12 assuming Interior Electric did not remedy its pleading defects. So I consider these arguments on 13 their merits.

14 C. Intentional interference with prospective economic advantage

15 To succeed on a claim for intentional interference with prospective economic advantage, 16 a plaintiff must allege facts demonstrating:

17 (1) a prospective contractual relationship between the plaintiff and 18 a third party; (2) knowledge by the defendant of the prospective 19 relationship; (3) intent to harm the plaintiff by preventing the 20 relationship; (4) the absence of privilege or justification by the 21 defendant; and (5) actual harm to the plaintiff as a result of the 22 defendant’s conduct.⁵¹

23 ⁴⁹ ECF No. 137 at 7 n.2, 8–9.

⁵⁰ ECF No. 179 at 6–8.

⁵¹ In re Amerco Derivative Litig., 252 P.3d 681, 702 (Nev. 2011) (quoting Wichinsky v. Mosa, 109 Nev. 84, 87–88 (1993)).

1 Ryba and Wilmer generally argue that Interior Electric has merely alleged “parallel conduct” that 2 is not unlawful, and they assert that Interior Electric has failed to allege facts supporting their
 3 intent to harm or that Interior Electric suffered actual harm, as well as the absence of privilege or 4 justification.⁵²

5 Interior Electric has sufficiently alleged that Ryba and Wilmer both intended to and 6 caused actual harm. Under Nevada law, “intent to harm” requires only “a purposeful act as 7 opposed to mere negligence or inadvertence.”⁵³ Interior Electric has cleared that threshold,
 8 alleging facts that demonstrate both Ryba and Wilmer purposefully solicited Interior Electric
 9 employees to form a competing subcontractor business, knowing that they could steal Interior
 10 Electric’s clients.⁵⁴ And Interior Electric has certainly alleged sufficient facts that this conduct
 11 resulted in the loss of customers and contracts.⁵⁵ While defendants claim that these facts are 12 merely “consistent” with the claim and “insufficient to raise more than a suspicion of 13 wrongdoing,”⁵⁶ that is not the test for these elements, which requires facts showing that the 14 defendants are “substantially certain that interference with a commercial relationship will 15 occur.”⁵⁷

17 ⁵² ECF No. 191 at 6–8. In their motion, the defendants also argued that Interior Electric failed to 18 allege the existence of a contractual relationship with a third party, but they abandoned that argument in their reply. Compare id. at 6, with ECF No. 224 at 5–8. It is thus waived.

19 ⁵³ Las Vegas-Tonopah-Reno Stage Line, Inc. v. Gray Line Tours of S. Nev., 792 P.2d 386, 388
 (Nev. 1990).

20 ⁵⁴ See ECF No. 188 at ¶¶ 38–41, 45.

21 ⁵⁵ See, e.g., id. at ¶¶ 60 (“These breaches were the beginning of a calculated effort to starve
 Interior Electric Nevada of its cash flow so that it would be forced out of business, eliminating it 22 as a competitor to BAMM, and forcing it to leave the Las Vegas market.”); 291 (noting that BAMM used Interior Electric’s work product to complete various projects).

23 ⁵⁶ ECF No. 224 at 6–7 (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 554) (internal quotation marks omitted).

⁵⁷ Las Vegas-Tonopah-Reno Stage Line, Inc., 792 P.2d at 388.

For purposes of this Rule 12(b)(6) motion, Ryba's and Wilmer's acts were neither privileged nor justified. While Nevada courts have yet to definitively rule which privileges or justifications defeat an intentional-interference claim,⁵⁸ Nevada "favor[s] the Restatement view that where the interference is improper it is not privileged."⁵⁹ In determining whether conduct is "improper," the Restatement considers seven factors, including the nature of the conduct and the actor's motive, the interests of the parties, the public interest in protecting freedom of action and contractual interests, the proximity of the conduct, and the relations between the parties.⁶⁰ Interior Electric has sufficiently pled that Ryba and Wilmer's conduct was improper, alleging that the pair funneled cash to form a business with Interior Electric's employees, concealed their involvement, and then used Interior Electric's copyrighted materials to steal its clients and complete its contracts.⁶¹ And while Ryba and Wilmer argue that their conduct was justified or privileged because they acted as business managers, resolution of that defense is inappropriate on a motion to dismiss because it requires me to consider facts not alleged in the complaint.⁶² So I deny defendant's motion to dismiss with respect to Interior Electric's claim for intentional interference with prospective economic advantage.

⁵⁸ See From the Future, LLC v. Flowers, No. 2:06-CV-00203, 2009 WL 10709083, at *3 (D. Nev. 2009) ("Nevada has not addressed whether an attorney or other business advisor may be liable for tortiously interfering with his client's contracts.").

⁵⁹ Las Vegas-Tonopah-Reno Stage Line, Inc., 792 P.2d at 388 n.1 (Nev. 1990); see also Nationwide Transp. Fin. v. Cass Info. Sys., Inc., 523 F.3d 1051, 1055 (9th Cir. 2008) (reciting that, under Nevada law, absence of privilege means the conduct is "improper" and relying on the Restatement's factors to determine "improper conduct").

⁶⁰ Restatement (Second) of Torts § 767 (1979).

⁶¹ ECF No. 1 at ¶¶ 45, 49–50, 169.

⁶² See Suchow Borax Mines Consol. v. Borax Consol., 185 F.2d 196, 205 (9th Cir. 1950).

1 D. Civil conspiracy

2 “Actionable civil conspiracy arises where two or more persons undertake some concerted
3 action with the intent ‘to accomplish an unlawful objective for the purpose of harming another,’
4 and damage results.”⁶³ A conspiracy action must be based on an agreement to commit a viable
5 tort.⁶⁴ Ryba and Wilmer assert that this claim rises and falls with Interior Electric’s other tort
6 claims against them.⁶⁵ Because I have held that Interior Electric has sufficiently alleged a claim
7 for intentional interference with prospective economic advantage against Ryba and Wilmer, its 8 civil-conspiracy claim similarly clears the pleading-stage hurdle.

9 Conclusion

10 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that T.W.C., Ryba, and Wilmer’s motion to dismiss
11 [ECF No. 191] is DENIED. Defendants have until October 22, 2020, to answer.⁶⁶

12
13
14 U.S. District Judge Jennifer A. Dorsey
15 October 8, 2020
16
17
18
19

20 ⁶³ Guilfoyle v. Olde Monmouth Stock Transfer Co., 335 P.3d 190, 198 (Nev. 2014) (quoting 21 Consol. Generator-Nev., Inc. v. Cummins Engine Co., 971 P.2d 1251, 1256 (Nev. 1998)).

22 ⁶⁴ Id.; see also Philip v. BAC Home Loans Servicing, LP, 644 Fed. App’x 710, 711 (9th Cir.
2016) (unpublished) (citing Eikelberger v. Tolotti, 611 P.2d 1086, 1088 (Nev. 1980)).

23 ⁶⁵ ECF No. 191 at 10 (“Plaintiff’s civil[-]conspiracy claim against Ryba and Wilmer also fails as a matter of law since it is not based on a viable tort.”).

⁶⁶ Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(a)(4)(A).